Description

this is our reproduction paul volther corona chair. first produced in 1961 by danish designer poul volther, the corona chair was originally crafted from solid oak. after experimentation with various materials, the 'ej 605' was released a year later, which closely resembled its predecessor but was crafted of steel. a true original, the corona chair was completely unique in design, using (seemingly suspended) concentric shapes to make up its form, yet sacrificing nothing in the way of function and comfort. this inspired reproduction features a stainless steel frame with a high polish finish upholstered in cashmere fabric. it is also available in various leather colors. the concentric shapes that make up the backrest can also be used as armrests.

ottoman and chair sold separately.

covers: fixed. fabrics or leather.

foam: molded polyurethane foam.
